This chapter discusses an analysis of how Colombian ethnic minorities have mobilized to overcome the legacy of Spanish colonialism that had destroyed their past. It also focuses on the efforts of the indigenous and Afro-Colombian communities to recover their heritage and traditions, as well as to protect their communities from the impact of both the internal armed conflict and neoliberal policies in Colombia.